INDEX TO VOLUME 27

AUTHOR INDEX

Barbour, Dennis H. Heroism and Redemption in the Mad Max Trilogy. Fall, 28.

Bindas, Kenneth J. Neon in the Desert: Robert Sherwood's The Petrified Forest (1936) and the Return of Hope. Spring, 21.

Clauss, James J. Descent into Hell: Mythic Paradigms in The Searchers. Fall, 2.

Cooksey, Thomas L. "Talk Not of a Wife": The Devil and Daniel Webster, Cabin in the Sky, and Damn Yankees—American Contributions to the Faust Legend. Fall, 18.

Corbin, Carol, and Robert A. Campbell. Postmodern Iconography and Perspective in Coppola's Bram Stoker's Dracula. Summer, 40.

Cripps, Thomas. Sam the Piano Player: The Man Between. Winter, 16.

Dutta, Mary Buhl. Taming the Victim: Rape in Soap Opera. Spring, 34.

Edgerton, Gary R. "The Germans Wore Gray, You Wore Blue": Frank Capra, Casablanca, and the Colorization Controversy of the 1980s. Winter, 24.

Heldreth, Leonard G. Vampires in Film and Television: Introduction. Summer, 2.

Jackson, Kathy Merlock. Playing It Again and Again: Casablanca's Impact on American Mass Media and Popular Culture. Winter, 33.

Jordan, John J. Vampire Cyborgs and Scientific Imperialism: A Reading of the Science–Mysticism Polemic in Blade. Summer, 4.

Kendrick, James. Marxist Overtones in Three Films by James Cameron. Fall, 36.

Lusane, Clarence. Assessing the Disconnect between Black and White Television Audiences: The Race, Class, and Gender Politics of Married . . . With Children. Spring, 12.

Merlock, Ray. Introduction: Casablanca: Popular Film of the Century. Winter, 2.

Nachbar, Jack. Doing the Thinking for All of Us: Casablanca and the Home Front. Winter, 5.

———. "Nobody Ever Loved Me That Much": A Casablanca Bibliography. Winter, 42.

———, and Ray Merlock. Time Going By: A Casablanca Chronology. Winter, 46.

Owen, A. Susan. Vampires, Postmodernity, and Postfeminism: Buffy the Vampire Slayer. Summer, 24.

Schneider, Karen. With Violence if Necessary: Rearticulating the Family in the Contemporary Action–Thriller. Spring, 2.

Smith, Claude J., Jr. Finding a Warm Place for Someone We Know: The Cultural Appeal of Recent Mental Patient and Asylum Films. Spring, 40.

Wilcox, Rhonda V. There Will Never Be a "Very Special" Buffy: Buffy and the Monsters of Teen Life. Summer, 16.

Wyman, Leah M., and George N. Dionisopoulos. Primal Urges and Civilized Sensibilities: The Rhetoric of Gendered Archetypes, Seduction, and Resistance in Bram Stoker's Dracula. Summer, 32.

TITLE INDEX

Assessing the Disconnect between Black and White Television Audiences: The Race, Class, and Gender Politics of Married . . . With Children. Clarence Lusane. Spring, 12.

Descent into Hell: Mythic Paradigms in The Searchers. James J. Clauss. Fall, 2.

Doing the Thinking for All of Us: Casablanca and the Home Front. Jack Nachbar. Winter, 5.

Finding a Warm Place for Someone We Know: The Cultural Appeal of Recent Mental Patient and Asylum Films. Claude J. Smith, Jr. Spring, 40.

Heroism and Redemption in the Mad Max Trilogy. Dennis H. Barbour. Fall, 28.

Introduction: Casablanca: Popular Film of the Century. Ray Merlock. Winter, 2.

Marxist Overtones in Three Films by James Cameron. James Kendrick. Fall, 36.

Neon in the Desert: Robert Sherwood's The Petrified Forest (1936) and the Return of Hope. Kenneth J. Bindas. Spring, 21.

"Nobody Ever Loved Me That Much": A Casablanca Bibliography. Jack Nachbar. Winter, 42.

Playing It Again and Again: Casablanca's Impact on American Mass Media and Popular Culture. Kathy Merlock Jackson. Winter, 33.

Postmodern Iconography and Perspective in Coppola's Bram Stoker's Dracula. Carol Corbin and Robert A. Campbell. Summer, 40.

Primal Urges and Civilized Sensibilities: The Rhetoric of Gendered Archetypes, Seduction, and Resistance in Bram Stoker's Dracula. Leah M. Wyman and George N. Dionisopoulos. Summer, 32.

Sam the Piano Player: The Man Between. Thomas Cripps. Winter, 16.

"Talk Not of a Wife": The Devil and Daniel Webster, Cabin in the Sky, and Damn Yankees—American Contributions to the Faust Legend. Thomas L. Cooksey. Fall, 18.

Taming the Victim: Rape in Soap Opera. Mary Buhl Dutta. Spring, 34.

"The Germans Wore Gray, You Wore Blue": Frank Capra, Casablanca, and the Colorization Controversy of the 1980s. Gary R. Edgerton. Winter, 24.

There Will Never Be a "Very Special" Buffy: Buffy and the Monsters of Teen Life. Rhonda V. Wilcox. Summer, 16.

Time Going By: A Casablanca Chronology. Jack Nachbar and Ray Merlock. Winter, 46.

Vampire Cyborgs and Scientific Imperialism: A Reading of the Science–Mysticism Polemic in Blade. John J. Jordan. Summer, 4.

Vampires in Film and Television: Introduction. Leonard G. Heldreth. Summer, 2.

Vampires, Postmodernity, and Postfeminism: Buffy the Vampire Slayer. A. Susan Owen. Summer, 24.

With Violence if Necessary: Rearticulating the Family in the Contemporary Action–Thriller. Karen Schneider. Spring, 2.

BOOK REVIEWS (BY BOOK AUTHOR)

Benshoff, Harry M. Monsters in the Closet: Homosexuality and the Horror Film. Reviewed by Patrick Cook. Fall, 45.

Bok, Sissela. Mayhem: Violence as Public Entertainment. Reviewed by Annalee R. Ward. Fall, 46.

Delamater, Jerome H., and Ruth Prigozy, eds. The Detective in American Fiction, Film, and Television. Reviewed by Joseph Schaub. Fall, 48.

Lee, Rohama, ed. Film News Index, 1939–1981. Reviewed by Michael T. Marsden. Fall, 47.

Rhines, Jesse Algeron. Black Film/White Money. Reviewed by Laura Baker. Spring, 47.

Wagg, Stephen, ed. Because I Tell a Joke or Two: Comedy, Politics, and Social Difference. Reviewed by Nicole Matthews. Fall, 47.

Watkins, S. Craig. Representing: Hip Hop Culture and the Production of Black Cinema. Reviewed by Bill Yousman. Fall, 46.